Backstory

Origins

Born and raised in the cloud city of Bepin, Vyr'chell was groomed from a young age to serve the nobles and those in power as an assistant. A highly sought after race for personal secretaries, she quickly found employ among the nobles, working her way up the career ladder.

As time went by and her services became longer and more strenuous, Vyr'chell was tempted by a fellow assistant to take a stim to take the edge off a particularly hard day. The hard days began to mount up, and Vyr'chell began to take more and more stims to keep up. Before she knew it she was hooked, needing to stim just to get the day started.

Stim-abuse has several signs, particularly after prolonged use and abuse. The nobles Vyr'chell served caught on and dismissed her from their service, making sure that she could not find any work within the noble circles.

Desperate, hooked on stims, and now unable to pay her bills, Vyr'chell became desperate. Entering the lower areas of Bepin, where the knowledge of her addiction would mean little. She approached one of the many crime organisations, decrepit, corrupt groups with no ways back out. A female Twi'lek, of obvious grooming and high-class sensibilities, would fetch a high price in certain markets.

Just as Vyr'chell was preparing to sign her life away, she was pulled aside by someone – a stranger who would bring her back from the edge of a very dark precipice. Aris Shen, daughter of a Bepin noble, had seen this Twi'lek, a strange sight indeed in that seedy place. For whatever reason, she offered Vyr'chell a place back in society.
